

Here came;
princes and princesses, kings and queens, princes and emperors.
To Voss, after days on end of travel.
They traveled b steamer and rail and horse- drawn carriage along the dusty roads. Through sparsely populated rural areas. Over windswept mountain passes.

To their astonishment,
they arrived then to a hotel
with a strange familiar atmosphere, as if at ones they were back in Berlin, London, Stockholm or Paris.

An atmosphere of noble, continental habits formed of hospitality:

"A cigar, Mr. Nansen?"

"Dinner is served honorable king.

Tonight we have turtle soup for starter and deep fried quail for the main course.

Dare we recommend a glass of burgundy? "

In the middle of this beautiful but desolate landscape, right in this nothing far off the beaten track,
they found someone who could give them what they were used to,
which made them feel at home.

And that's exactly how we want you to feel it too.

Enjoy your stay!
